Thank you for agreeing to speak for a GitHub Program! As part of our efforts to contribute to our community, GitHub, Inc. ("GitHub") frequently provides speakers, demonstrations, and educational presentations at our events and programs. We generally record these events (both audio and video), or provide a transcript, unless prior arrangements are made. By signing this release, you agree to participate in the Program described above, and to be recorded, under the following terms:

1. You own the content of your presentation. However, just so that we can reasonably use and advertise your presentation without violating the legal rights you have in it:
  - A. You agree to grant us a nonexclusive, worldwide, perpetual, and royalty free license:
    - i. To use, reproduce, distribute, transcribe, display, publish, perform, or license your presentation, as presented in the Program, alone or in conjunction with other materials;
    - ii. To use your presentation as part of an online video series or other publication produced by GitHub;
    - iii. To use your presentation to promote and publicize GitHub, the Program, and similar GitHub events;
    - iv. To use your name, likeness, voice, photograph, and biographical information in connection with the advertising, publicity, and promotion of your presentation or GitHub's Program.

B. We agree that this license does not grant us the right to sell your presentation separately from the Program (except that we may host a video recording of the presentation on a website, such as YouTube, that features advertising).

2. Regarding your participation in the Program, you make a few promises to us.

A. You warrant that you have the full power and authority to enter into this agreement and sign this release.

B. Regarding your presentation and any other material you distribute or display, you warrant that:

i. Your materials are original to you, or if they are not, you have the right to use any third party materials (you have either obtained permission from the rights holder or are using the material consistent with law);

ii. Your presentation will not defame anyone, invade anyone's privacy, or infringe anyone's intellectual property;

iii. You will provide permission agreements for use of any third party copyrighted material upon request; and

iv. You will indemnify and hold GitHub harmless for any liability or costs incurred by breach of this warranty.

3. This Agreement will be governed and construed in accordance with the laws of the State of California, without regard to conflict of law provisions. If any part of this Agreement is held invalid or unenforceable, that portion of the Agreement will be construed to reflect the parties' original intent. The remaining portions will remain in full force and effect.
